Product Description

JIS 4305 316 Thin Stainless Steel Coil 304 0.15mm Stainless Steel Strips

Hot rolling stainless steel slabs in a reheated burner produces stainless steel coil. The hot rolling procedure is performed at a high temperature. Steel slabs are constantly passed through heating and rolling machines. The finished product is then appropriately coiled. Once the stainless steel coils are rolled up after heating they are kept out to cool down to provide good finishing and oxide free coatings and impurities.
